

The future of business is green. Sustainability, according to many experts, will be a key factor for the growth of the economy in coming decades. Don't just be dependent on the developments. Profit from the chance to participate in the growing market of bioplastics and take part in shaping the development of this green technology with your products. Prepare your company for the future concerning sustainability and take advantage of technological developments and innovations in the growing bioplastics market.

Our expertise is your success. Ostfalia has been working for more than 25 years in the field of bioplastics. Benefit from our experience to facilitate the entry of your company into the bioplastics market, or to optimize already existing products. We help you identify market niches and to develop targeted products for the needs of your customers. We also offer a variety of services at all stages of the product life cycle. Contact us, we will be happy to assist you.